

TwinSaintz

DaRon and TraiVon Cooper spent most of their young years living in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. They attended a local church called Set Free Cathedral of Deliverance. In 2003 the church had a revival and a local Christian rap group called Little Mike and Funny Bone performed. The style of this new gospel music along with its hip hop beats inspired the Twins to start their own group. At the age of 11, the Twins started a group called 100%. It consisted of the Twins, their 8 year old cousin Michael, and their friend from school named BJ. The boys began to develop their God given talents as Rappers and song writers which lead to performing in local school events and church youth conferences. But before the boys were able to get into the studio, the Twins mother decided to move them to Atlanta, GA. Upset with their mother's decision, they had to break up the group after being together for a year. Still determined to follow their dream, the Twins decided to call themselves TwinSaintz and continued to write. Once they arrived in Atlanta (Feb 2005), it wasn't 3 weeks before they met a producer from LAW Productions, who took them straight to the studio to record a small demo. After shopping the demo around town, a local record label offered TwinSaintz a deal, but only if they agreed to go mainstream. But the Twins declined the deal because they refused to take God out of their music. In June of 2005, The Twins won a free contract with a local Atlanta modeling agency called The National Film & Fashion Board. This allowed them to meet lots of people in the music and film industry. One day after a movie shoot, the boys were approached by a producer named Deckade from Red Wolf Entertainment, LLC, who heard them rapping in the movie. He offered the boys studio time to help them complete their first album. Since then the boys have landed opportunity to minister not only in Atlanta, Georgia but also in Mississippi, Oklahoma, Texas, Florida, North and South Carolina, California, Alabama, Washington, and the list goes on. TwinSaintz released their first album in 2008. The hit song from that album "Devils Lie" won its spot on the 2008 Holy Hip Hop Volume 6 Compilation CD that has a world wide distribution with EMI. TwinSaintz is due to release their second album in the summer of 2009.
